- Allies and Allies leaders of World War II
- How American foreign policy changes from "NEUTRAL" to "INVOLVEMENT"
- War in the Pacific
- Major events and Turning Points of World War II
- The Holocaust
- Women’s involvement in the war
- American’s support for the war at home
- Effects of World War II at home
- Rebuilding Europe after World War II
- Effects of World War II worldwide
- Establishing the United Nations
Between the wars, 1918-1939

The Treaty of Versailles was between Germany and Allied countries that established Germany's role and punishment for their part in World War II. Germany was angry for being forced to accept the total blame for the war and lost land, Italy was angered by not getting as much land as they thought they deserved, Japan was insulted because the treaty would not accept their proposed "equality of races" belief. In short, the fighting stopped but the anger still existed.

The United States in the 1920's was a period where most American's were optimistic (felt positive, good) about the country's future. Business was good in American factories and most people had money to spend on household conveniences and entertainment. Many American's invested in the stock market and became wealthy. The 1920's were also a period of Prohibition (a time when alcohol was illegal) so speakeasies became popular. Famous gangsters made money selling illegal alcohol gained power.

But by the end of the 1920 everything changed. Millions of people lost everything when the Great Depression started in October of 1929. Banks failed, people were homeless, and families were torn apart.

The rest of the world also suffered from a worldwide depression and people in most countries did not see a good future for themselves and for their country. Because of this fear of the future, people were willing to listen and be convinced by radical (wanting change at any cost) groups or individuals calling for change. It also helped make it possible for governments to be "over-thrown" by groups or individuals who promised to create jobs for the people to end the depression, build their military to become a world power again, and promised a bright future for their country. People demanded change and these people promised to give them change by taking control of the government.

These new world leaders were dictators that controlled not only the government but also the people. They created their own "rules" and began taking land from smaller countries to get natural resources to help support their countries. Because the world had recently finished a destructive world war (World War I) and the world wide depression, most countries were not able to stop dictators from invading neighboring countries and taking control.

Causes of World War II

- This means that the government of a country and its leader is weak and lacks support from the people or military of the country it serves. When people in the country no longer supports the government and its leaders, the people will challenge the government of their country by “overthrowing” (pushing them out of power) them and taking power of the country by force.

What causes “political instability” ????

- High war debts owed by Germany
- High inflation
- High unemployment
- Worldwide Depression

Why Germany hated the Treaty of Versailles
(This treaty was between only Germany and the Allies)

- Germany was forced to take total responsibility for causing WWI
  - Because the Weimar Government signed this agreement, the Germany people did not support them

- Germany had high war debts and was forced to repay Allied countries
  - About $400 billion, but, there was never an amount given
  - German people felt this was unfair
    This helped create inflation (when cost to buy goods is high)
• High unemployment (people out of work)
  o Because Germany could not pay the money to France, France Entered Germany in a place called the Ruhr. This was where most of Germany’s factories were and France took them over and deported (kicked out) about 150,000 German workers that no longer had jobs.

• Germany lost a lot of land
  o Some given to France, Poland, Belgium, Denmark, Czechoslovakia, and Russia
  o League of Nations took control of Germany’s oversees colonies
  o New countries were created from some German land

• Germany’s military was limited
  o Could have no more than 100,000 men
  o Could not have tanks
  o Not allowed to have an air force
  o Could only have six naval ships an zero submarines

• This is a political philosophy (your values and beliefs that you live by) that gives total power to a dictator and the peoples individual freedoms are denied (not allowed)
  o Adolph Hitler in Germany
  o Benito Mussolini in Italy
  o Hideki Tojo in Japan

These dictator’s and their countries eventually led an alliance that became known as the Axis Powers
• Why would people in a country support a dictator?
  o Because the government the country had was weak
  o Because they promised a better life for the people
    ▪ Jobs
    ▪ Military power
    ▪ Economic growth
  o Pride of Nationalism (they believed their nationality was the best in the world and the people supported them)
  o Military power promised the people in the countries world superiority and economic relief

![Images of dictators]

Why did Germany allow a dictator to take control of the country?

• Germans were mad about the Versailles Treaty
  o Germany had to take total responsibility for starting the war
  o German people were out of work
  o Germany lost a lot of land
  o German people thought the amount of money they had to repay to the Allied countries was unfair
- Germany was stripped of its army, navy, and air force
- The policy of “appeasement” led Hitler to become more greedy

Why did Italy allow a dictator to take control of the country?

- Italy's natural resources were not enough to support the number of people the country had. This led to strikes and riots due to the people not having enough jobs. Mussolini promised to bring Italy back to days it had during the Roman Empire.
- Italy only joined the Allies in World War I because they (the Allies) promised to divide up the Central Powers land and Italy wanted to be in a position to get more land. Italy gained less land than they thought they deserved.
- Italy wanted to expand its empire and Italy looked to Africa to fulfill its ambitions for an empire. In 1935, Italian troops invaded Ethiopia, one of the few independent countries in Africa. The Italians used machine guns, tanks, and airplanes to overpower Ethiopia's poorly equipped army.
- The people in Italy were afraid Socialist government from Russia might control them if they remained weak.

Why did Japan allow a dictator to take control of the country?

- Japan's natural resources were not enough to support the number of people the country had. This led to Japan needing to expand its territory to get the natural resources it needed. Because of this, Japan invaded Manchuria.
- The invasion would also get the needed natural materials needed to build their military to defend themselves against any future threat from Russia.
- Military officers started to hold political jobs and gained power.
- Japan built up its defense under the control of military leaders.
- Japan was angered by the failure of the Treaty of Versailles to include the "equality of all races".

Why did the other countries of the world allow these dictators to rise to power and to start invading other countries?

- The League of Nations was weak and lacked the power to stop Them from taking over other countries.
- The world just finished the most destructive war in history and did not want to start fighting again. Countries adopted a policy of....

And in 1941,

Why did Stalin join the Allies?
1st: appeasement (1938)

In September 1938 the British and French prime ministers met Adolph Hitler and surrendered to his demands. They agreed to divide up Czechoslovakia and allowed Hitler to annex the Sudetenland (part of Czechoslovakia). The reason Hitler was allowed to annex part of Czechoslovakia was to keep world peace.

2nd: Nazi-Soviet Pact..... A Shock to the System

- The Pact (agreement) was between Germany and Soviet Union

- The agreement promised that if each of the countries got into a war by invading another country, the other country would not get involved to fight against them

- Secret part of the agreement was that Germany and Soviet Union would invade Poland and divide it up between them.

On 23 August 1939, the world was shocked when, suddenly, Russia and Germany signed a Non-aggression Pact. People would have been even more shocked if they had known at the time that, in addition, the two countries had a secret agreement to invade and divide Poland between them.

Hitler signs pact with Stalin. Hitler wants Stalin to “feel safe” from a German invasion. Within two years Hitler invades Russia. This caused Russia to join the Allies against Germany and Hitler.
Major Events of World War II

• August 23, 1939:

D-Day is June 6, 1944—the day on which the Battle of Normandy began—beginning the British, American, and Canadian liberation efforts of mainland Europe from Nazi occupation during World War II.

The attack began when allied planes and warships bombarded German positions along the coastline. This was to damage the defenses making it easier for the troops to get ashore.

At the same time planes and gliders dropped tens of thousands of allied soldiers behind the German defenses. They took control of important roads and bridges. This made it harder for the German army to rush extra men towards areas where the troops were landing.

Thousands of ships set out from the south coast of England. In all, over 6,000 vessels joined the attack. Over 11,000 planes supported them. The naval force crossed the channel overnight.

At 6.30am on 6 June troops started to land on the beaches of Normandy. There were five main landing beaches: Juno, Gold, Omaha, Sword, and Utah.

By the end of D-Day the allies had put 156,000 troops ashore in Normandy suffering 10,000 casualties.
The importance of D Day was Midway is the most remote of the Hawaiian Islands, 1,300 miles NW of Oahu, where Pearl Harbor is located. After the attack by Japan on Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, the U.S. felt it was important to respond quickly to Japan. On April 1, 1942, four months after the attack on Pearl Harbor, the U.S. send a powerful message to Japan and its people by bombing them in what is known as the Doolittle raid. This event both surprised the Japanese leaders and people, who had always been told that Japan was not vulnerable to an attack by the U.S. or any of the Allies. Because of the Doolittle Raid, the Japanese people began to question the idea that they could not be attacked.

The Manhattan Project

On 2nd August, 1939, three Jewish scientists who had fled to the United States from Europe, Albert Einstein, Leo Szilard and Eugene Wigner, wrote a joint letter to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, about the developments that had been taking place in nuclear physics. They warned Roosevelt that scientists in Nazi Germany were working on the possibility of using uranium to produce nuclear weapons.

Hiroshima and Nagasaki

August 6 and 9, 1945

"My God, what have we done?"

- Robert Lewis, the co-pilot of the Enola Gay, the B-29 that dropped the first atomic bomb.

Hiroshima, August 6, 1945

The atomic bomb has been used only twice in warfare. The first was at Hiroshima. A uranium bomb nicknamed "Little Boy", despite weighing over four and a half tons, was dropped on Hiroshima, Japan on August 6, 1945 at 8:15 a.m. The bomb was dropped from the Enola Gay. In an instant over 66,000 people were killed and 69,000 injured by the atomic explosion. The area of total vaporization from the atomic bomb blast measured one half mile in diameter and total destruction one mile in diameter.

Nagasaki, August 9, 1945

On August 9, 1945, Nagasaki fell to the same treatment. This time a Plutonium bomb nicknamed "Fat Man" was dropped on the city. Though "Fat Man" missed its target by over a mile and a half, it still leveled nearly half the city. In a split second, Nagasaki's population dropped from 422,000 to 383,000. Over 25,000 people were injured.

After World War II

Germany was split in half. East Germany became Communist and West Germany became democratic. A wall was built to divide Berlin and East and West Germany. In 1989, the wall came down when Communism fell. Germany went on to become a democratic country and relations between Germany and the United States improved.

Russia continued to become a Communist country with an aggressive political attitude toward Eastern European countries where they took control of several countries and created Communist governments. This was the beginning of the Cold War. However, Communism eventually failed in 1989 leaving the United States as the world’s only “Super Power.”

Japan was taken over by American troops who introduced and preached democracy. Eventually, Japan accepted and embraced the idea of democracy and became a democratic country and friend of the United States.
“Our policy is directed not against any country or doctrine but against hunger, poverty, desperation, and chaos. Its purpose should be the revival of a working economy in the world so as to permit the emergence of political and social conditions in which free institutions can exist.” -- George C. Marshall

Following World War II, Europe needed reconstruction of its economic and political system that was badly damaged by the war. Bridges, houses, roads, and factories were in ruins. The depletion of gold and dollar reserves made it difficult to get much-needed items for basic survival. Food shortages discouraged maximum efforts by a demoralized work force. Shortages of coal, steel, and other basic resources further made production difficult for European countries. The winter of 1946-47, the worst in modern memory, nearly wiped out earlier economic gains. Europe’s future looked bleak.....

Because the United States was cut off from some of its trading partners in the Far East and wartime production demanded extraordinary resources, the country faced the very real possibility of shortages. In order to prevent this, the government took an active role in limiting the purchase of some items and maintaining price controls.
